

Behold the Lamb of God!

ANN M. GARRIDO

Of the many names Scripture provides to help us ponder the mystery of Jesus, one of the most intriguing is the name that John the Baptist offers at the opening of today's gospel: "Behold the Lamb of God!" (John 1:29).

Scripture scholars debate what John means here. Is he alluding to the Passover lamb—that unblemished lamb whose blood the enslaved Israelites were to post over their doorways? The angel of death knew to "pass over" these homes. Perhaps John was saying that by Jesus' blood, the people would be freed from death.

Or was John thinking about the guilt offerings mentioned in the Hebrew Scriptures when priests offered animal sacrifices to God as a way of seeking the removal of their sins? Leviticus mentions use of a scapegoat who would carry the sins of the people away into the desert. (See Leviticus 20–28.) Could John have understood that Jesus would bear the sins of the world?

Or did John have in mind the great constellation Aries, the ram, considered the prince of the stars of the sky, the center from whom all the other constellations were mapped in ancient times? Perhaps John was pointing out that Jesus was the center around whom heaven and earth revolve, like the ruling lamb mentioned in the Book of Revelation.

Today at Mass, when the host is elevated and you hear John's words again—"Behold the Lamb of God!"—take a moment to savor these words anew. ●

FOCUS: We must bring the light of Christ to the world. The servants of God are lights to the world. There is no way to serve God without bringing light to others. Isaiah and John the Baptist were both called lights. Jesus is, of course, the light of the world, but he also desires that his followers bring his true light to the world.

THE BISHOP'S CORNER

Dear Fellow-Catholics,

Last week, Pope Leo XIV held his first extraordinary consistory calling the cardinals to Rome to experience a time of spiritual discernment in unity and to warn against the temptation to place personal interests ahead of the common good. This extraordinary consistory, distinct from ordinary consistories, which are more limited and more frequent, was planned to take place immediately after the Jubilee of Hope in order to offer support and advice to the Pope in the exercise of his arduous responsibility of governing the Church.

"We gather not to promote personal or group 'agendas' but to entrust our plans and inspirations to a discernment that transcends us - 'as the heavens are higher than the earth' - and which comes only from the Lord," he said in his homily during the Mass he celebrated in St. Peter's Basilica with the cardinals, convened to help him make decisions about the future of the Catholic Church.

Pope Leo XIV urged the cardinals to experience the Eucharist as the place where this discernment is purified and transformed, asking them to place all their "hopes and ideas upon the altar. Only in this way will we truly know how to listen to his voice and to welcome it through the gift that we are to one another - which is the very reason we have gathered."

I wish to recall once more Pope Leo's words: "We gather not to promote personal or group 'agendas' but to entrust our plans and inspirations to a discernment that transcends us and which comes only from the Lord." In my view, the promotion of personal or group 'agendas' is one of the main problems we face not only in the Church as a whole, but also within our Diocese and our parishes. This often leads to inefficiency in our planning and in our actions.

Have a restful weekend and a blessed week!

Bishop Wes

Dear Padre,

I thought only priests and bishops should distribute Holy Communion at Mass. In my parish, the priest allows laypeople to help him, and I thought laypeople couldn't because our hands are not consecrated.

You're not the only person with this concern, so thank you for taking the time to write. The distribution of holy Communion has nothing to do with "consecrated hands." Ordinary ministers of Communion include bishops and priests, as you rightly identify, but also deacons and installed acolytes. Of the four ordinary ministers, only the hands of bishops and priests are consecrated. Laypeople are extraordinary ministers and are installed to help the priest so that everyone can receive holy Communion without long lines or wearying the (sometimes elderly) priest. Most extraordinary ministers of Communion approach this ministry very prayerfully.

Your question brings up the subject of the full participation of the laity in the Mass, which is part of a highly contentious theological discussion on social media. There is an unfortunate conflict between so-called "traditional Catholics" and "Vatican II Catholics" or, as they are often misrepresented, "Novus Ordo" Catholics. Some Catholics are led to believe that the "new Mass" is not authentic, even though it has been the ordinary form of the Mass for well over fifty years—that is, since the authoritative Second Vatican Council. Many good and faithful people suffer with doubt and anxiety as a result of this confusion. ●

A WORD FROM POPE LEO XIV

Ours is a time marked by a growing search for spirituality, particularly evident in young people, who are longing for authentic relationships and guides in life. Hence, it is important that the Christian community be farsighted in discerning the challenges of today's world and in nurturing the desire for faith present in the heart of every man and woman.
